What a Furniture Store This Has Grown to Be.

There has not been a department among the many opened in this store that has made the rapid stride that furniture has.

By selling reliable furniture, by treating you in the same liberal manner that you are treated in every other branch of this business, has brought about this most unusual success.

Chiffoniers at $5.98.

Five drawers, full swell front, top 18x33 inches, height 56 inches.

A $13.00 Sideboard.

It's of solid oak, it has French plate mirror 14x34 inches, all drawers are full swell fronts, 6 ft. 5 in. high, top 21x 46 inches. Tip-top cabinet work throughout.

Five Piece $25.00 Parlor Suit.

Don't be mistrustful of inferiority—don't judge it by the parlor furniture you have seen at that price heretofore; it's better, if it were not we would not dare to advertise it.

The frames are of mahoganyized birch, nicely polished, oak carvings; the coverings are of silk brocatelle, full spring edges. The spring work and fillings are warranted, and you will be told just exactly what is in them. It's a rare chance for a bargain parlor suit.

Couches at $5.98.

Upholstered in heavy velvet trimmed with canopy fringe, long easy rolling head, strong warranted frames, fully equipped with steel tempered springs.

Couch at $8.00.

Here we have to give you a caution; there's only a limited number of them to be sold so—perhaps enough to last a week longer. They're $13 couches, and that too, gaged by the S. P. Dunham & Co. prices, which means in this case, an unusual bargain. They're covered with heavy art velvet, biscuit tufted all over and trimmed with heavy canopy fringe; fully equipped with steel tempered springs.

DOYLESTOWN.

An interesting case was heard in the civil court here on Monday. The plaintiff was Lillburn Williams, a Harboro painter, who brought suit against Weston Walton, a wealthy Warrimont farmer, to recover damages for having been subjected to the pain and mortification of arrest as an accomplice in a burglary that took place at Walton's residence last November. Williams, with a number of young men, three of them colored, was arrested upon information gleaned from one Charles Dudley, colored, who confessed that he had assisted to commit the crime, which consisted of the larceny and breaking of a safe while Walton was away from home. Dudley's testimony was so corroborated that all hands were acquitted. Williams' case did not reach the courts, however, as there was no evidence to implicate him, and he was discharged by the justice at his hearing. He had spent some time in a lock-up at Harboro and a day or more in the county jail. Quite a number of witnesses were examined in the civil proceeding on Monday, and after due deliberation the jury awarded Williams $50 damages.

The case cited was the only one submitted to a jury at this term of civil court, and it suggests a rather remarkable state of affairs. It has been but a few months since all the jury cases at civil term were continued and the jury discharged owing to the small number of cases to be heard. It is certainly very unusual to have so little litigation in a county the character of Bucks. It is not the case in neighboring counties. Why it is so can hardly be explained unless the good people of Bucks are all honest and upon amicable terms. The varied interests of the county and the extent of the business transacted would seem to offer a lucrative field for the practice of law, but with hardly enough business to warrant the drawing of a jury one term after another the opposite would seem to be the case. It may be that Bucks County attorneys possess the art of settling cases without resorting to the courts. At any rate the civil proceedings are very much curtailed so far as jury cases are concerned.

A joint meeting of the County Commissioners, Directors of the Port and members of the Local Board of Visitors to the Bucks County Almshouse was held here on Monday to discuss the matter of repairs to the old almshouse building. Oscar A. Martin, of Doylestown architect, employed to submit plans of repairs, appeared before the Board and stated that according to his estimate the improvements to be made would cost about $2,500. It is generally understood that the building will have new floors and a new roof, which will constitute the chief improvements made. It is claimed that such repairs were not the requirements of the case. The County Commissioners will not take any definite action in the matter until their next meeting on May 1. It is generally conceded that the building should be supplied with better facilities for heating, but there is a difference of opinion as to how this should be done, some taxpayers advocating stoves and others a steam heating plant.

Fritz Weisel, the veteran horseman of Doylestown, sustained a severe loss on Monday in the destruction of his barn by fire. It has been but a year or more since a former barn was burned. It is thought that both fires were of incendiary origin. While the flames were consuming the second structure on Monday a man was seen running away from the building and endeavoring to hide in the woods near the barn. It is thought he will be captured, as the authorities are pretty certain they have established his identity. The live stock and most of the implements and machinery were saved. The building and other contents were entirely consumed.

A definite announcement has at last been made concerning the matter of revising the system of nominating Republican candidates in this county. The committee appointed by the last County Convention to draft a new method will meet on May 8, when they will prepare their report embodying their views upon the subject, which will be submitted to the County Committee, which will meet on May 13. The report of both committees will be awaited with great interest by the Republican voters of the county.

The Doylestown and Willow Grove trolley road has a new superintendent in the person of George Moffat, of Philadelphia, who succeeds Frank W. Janney, resigned. Mr. Janney has been superintendent of the line since its construction and was very popular with the public. He handled the road last summer without accident when it was a difficult undertaking with the facilities so limited. The new superintendent is said to be equally efficient.

PENN'S MANOR.

E. R. Saylor was in the district this week looking after tobacco interests.

The farmers are taking advantage of the fine weather in planting potatoes.

Miss Jane Seidensticker, of Trenton, visited her parents here from Saturday till Monday.

William Chapman, of this place, who has been an employee of D. Lougherback for a long time, accepted a position on the steamer Florence this week.

Rev. A. S. Pittenger's sermons have been very much appreciated. Owing to the frequently flooded roads a good many people have been prevented from attending either services or Sunday school in the chapel this spring.

Our Supervisor went to work on Tuesday to fill up the ugly holes on a part of the Berdenstown road caused by a continuous high river. This will prevent a horse from breaking a leg or the probable breaking of an axle or a wheel on a wagon.

TULLYTOWN.

The regular meeting of the William Penn Building and Loan Association was held on Monday evening. As no preparations had been made for the meeting in Collins' Hall, Henry Lovett threw open his office for the use of the association. There was an unusual demand for loans on Monday evening, and this is a good thing for the association, money having been accumulating in the treasury of late.

John Burton, Jr., has been improving the lot on Main street, opposite his store. The old building and all traces of it have been removed, the ground graded, trees planted and a good sidewalk made in front of the lot, so what was formerly a blot on that portion of the street will by the middle of the summer become one of the most attractive spots on Main street.

Henry Lovett has just finished an enlargement of his hotel by connecting the building with the adjoining house. The front room of this house is now fitted up with tables and chairs for the accommodation of cyclists and travelers generally who may stop for rest and refreshment.

The farmers in this section are apparently "going in strong" for asparagus this spring. If it should transpire that the farmers throughout the country are following the same plan an over-production and low prices for this vegetable will prevail within three years.

Andrew Morgan, of Bristol, formerly of this place, was in town this week introducing among the storekeepers a new patent washboard, which he has invented. For the sake of the inventor his friends here hope it may prove a great success.

George Boice has accepted a position as fireman on the steamer Pokonoket, which will soon be making trips between Berdenstown and Philadelphia.

There will be an entertainment given at the M. E. Church this Thursday evening consisting of kinetoscope pictures and photographic music.

Rev. Francis Hawke will preach next Sunday evening on "Sabbath Breaking," the topic originally announced for last Sunday.

Rev. William J. Wright will preach next Sunday morning upon the topic, "The Book of Nature and Our Bible."

Mrs. Albert H. Baker and family, of Chester, are visiting Mrs. Hawke, of this place.

John Windle, of Philadelphia, was the guest of Elmer E. Johnson early in the week.

Mercantile appraiser John Johnson was in town Monday on a business trip.

Ezekiel Lovett is improving and enlarging his new house and store on Main street.

LOWER BENSALEM.

A very pretty wedding took place in the Edgemoor Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening, April 12, when Miss Annie C. Perrotet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Perrotet, was married to Rev. Frederick A. Warden by Rev. S. K. Polk, pastor of the church, and Rev. Dr. Satchel, of Philadelphia. The edifice was beautifully decorated and Easter lilies and ornamental plants formed a solid bank back of the altar. In the center aisle, at the front and back of the church, were two large green arches tied on each side with large bows of white satin ribbon. Promptly at half-past seven o'clock the four bridesmaids entered the church from the Sunday school room and marched down the center aisle to the wedding march played by Prof. Bradley. At the rear of the church the bridesmaids paused, allowing the four ushers to pass, who walked toward the altar, followed by the bridesmaids and maid of honor; then came the bride, escorted by her stepfather, Mr. E. Perrotet. Miss Perrotet was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Frederick Perrotet. The bride was resplendent in white silk and a small wreath of orange blossoms ornamented her head where the veil was fastened. The maid of honor, Miss Marion Perrotet, sister of the bride, was attired in a handsome white gown and carried white carnations. The bridesmaids were dressed in white and carried large bouquets of daisies.

The ushers were Mr. Leo, of Frankfort; Rev. John Watchorn, of Riebsburg; Rev. Mr. Riddington, of Ambler, and Rev. Mr. Shallop, of Cornwallville and Bensalem. A reception followed at Ashcroft, Cornwallville, the home of the bride's parents, where about two hundred guests were present. After the guests tendered their congratulations to the bride and groom they retired to the dining room, where a sumptuous wedding supper awaited them.

The bride received numerous handsome presents, consisting of cut glass, silverware, pictures, lamps, clocks, ornaments, sofa pillows and a couch.

The bride and groom left Cornwallville on the 9.30 train with the best wishes of their many friends for a happy future. Mr. and Mrs. Warden are now in Millersville, Lancaster County, where Mr. Warden's pastorate was assigned for this year.

The teachers of the public schools of Bensalem held their regular monthly meeting on Friday afternoon at the Edgemoor school house. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mr. Shiner, and the minutes of the preceding meeting were read by Mr. Neirvig, the secretary. The exercises consisted of essays, discussions and music. Dr. C. B. King was present.

The nice weather has brought out the bicycles.

Mr. Shallop, pastor of the Cornwallville and Bensalem M. E. churches, has been paying pastoral calls to the members of his flock.

The Cornwallville M. E. Church anticipates holding a pie and cake social on Saturday evening, April 29.

An exhibition and concert will be given in Johnson's hall on Saturday evening of this week under the auspices of the Epworth League of the M. E. Church. Lewis H. Storm will exhibit Edison's projecting kinetoscope.

The Ladies' Quartette will give an entertainment at the residence of Mrs. H. M. Thomson this evening at eight o'clock. A choice programme of musical numbers will be rendered and refreshments will be on sale. Admission, 25 cents.

The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. Church held a special meeting at the home of Mrs. Hugh B. Webster on Tuesday of this week. The object of the meeting was to make preliminary arrangements for an anniversary celebrating the birth of the society.

The executor of the estate of Robert Wood, deceased, sold at public auction, on the premises, the homestead farm containing 42 acres at $75 per acre, to Charles Wood, one of the heirs. Also a farm of 37 acres near the first mentioned, belonging to the estate, at $27.50 per acre.

Edward Everitt, of Newportville, and Miss Nellie Rudolph, of Philadelphia, were married at Tacony on Wednesday evening of last week. Among the relatives and friends of Newportville who attended the wedding were Mrs. Hannah Everitt, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse C. Everitt, Miss Nellie and Gertrude Everitt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles MacCorkle and son, Kirk, Ernest Vandegrift, and Misses Lizzie and Amy Vandegrift.

The graduates of the Hulmeville High School will give an entertainment on Saturday night, April 29, in Johnson's hall. The proceeds are for the benefit of the free circulating library. A liberal patronage of the public is solicited as the cause is for a general good and not limited to any class or society. Anyone living in the district which is composed of Hulmeville and Middletown, will have free access to the books.

Mr. and Mrs. Corey, who spent the winter at St. Augustine, Florida, returned home on Thursday of last week. Mr. Carl, of Burlington, and his sister, Mrs. Laura V. Kirk, of Hulmeville, arrived on Wednesday of this week. They started from St. Augustine on Tuesday of last week and visited on their way home Jacksonville, Savannah, Charleston, Richmond and Washington, D. C. One of the most interesting places visited was the ostrich farm near Jacksonville. The birds were brought here from the California farm only a short time ago, and the place was thrown open to visitors on Thanksgiving Day. The throngs of visitors that visit the farm every pleasant day have made it a profitable investment from admission fees alone, aside from the income derived from the sale of feathers, plumes and manufactured goods.

The most valuable feathers of the ostrich are the twenty-four long white plumes that grow on the underside of each wing. Next to these in value are the so-called "fan" feathers which grow above them. These are mixed in color, varying on the female from white to drab, the natural color of the outside feathers of the bird. In the male the tendency is toward black, which color distinguished him from his companion. In both birds the variation in color is gradual in the succeeding rows of plumage to those which cover the breast of the birds.

Above the "fan" feathers, ranged in regular rows, are five sets or series of feathers, growing less in length and consequently in value as the outside and exposed portion of the wing is reached. Added to these the tail is formed of thirty-six plumes, less only in value to the mixed feathers that lie next to the white plumes of the wings.

The feathers and plumes of the ostrich mature once in every nine months and this time marks the proper period for plucking the birds, amounting from the time that they are hatched. The operation of plucking the ostrich is an interesting one, for the great size and strength, greater in proportion than the size of the birds, make them decidedly difficult to handle with ordinary appliances. The process of preparing the plumes for the market is carried on in but one place in this country—at Pasadena, California, where factories have been erected and workmen employed at considerable expense. As the farm near Jacksonville is a branch of that in southern California, all feathers are sent there from Jacksonville to be prepared.

How much business can a man do whose system is in a state of disorder? Headache is only a symptom. It is not a disease. The pain in the head is the sign of rebellion. There have been mistakes in diet and other abuses.

Quite an exciting runaway took place on Monday morning last when a team of horses attached to W. G. Howell & Son's coal wagon, which was standing in front of the residence of Dr. L. N. Woodman on Washington street, suddenly dashed up the street at a furious pace. The team was finally stopped by the driver, Ely Leffer, after an exciting chase but in so doing he sustained a badly sprained foot which will be the cause of laying him up for a few days.

THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1899.

The one dollar feast of the Bryan idolaters was a howling success.

The whole structure of Republicanism is built upon the foundation of majority rule.

"Let me like a soldier" die, remarked the war boarder as he partook of canned corned beef.

New Yorkers never believed how little Crocker knew until he got on the witness stand.

Profit-sharing with thieves appears to be one of the sources of income of Crocker's New York policemen.

Crocker's dinner included napkins and finger bowls. Such things could not be expected at a dollar feast.

A surrender to a minority would have been a calamity which would have invited insurrection at future legislative sessions.

Crocker wants Platt investigated too. It is well to do one thing at a time. Platt may have a committee attached to his case if it is necessary. Who can tell?

David B. Hill's well-known expression, "I am a Democrat," is not sufficient during these exciting days. The price must be quoted also. $10 or $11?

If the spirit of Jefferson was present at Bryan's Saturday night's dinner it must have shuddered at the boisterous methods which prevailed. The clattering of dis-washers made the voices of the orators almost inaudible.

The noisy anti Quay League of Mon-gomery County, which succeeded in electing three Democratic Assemblymen last fall, is now looking for peace. We are informed that the League has decided not to put an Independent county ticket in the field this fall.

The line, "Founded by Horace Greeley," which for years stood at the head of the editorial columns of the New York Tribune, has been discarded. The Tribune's stamp of parentage used to excite the satirical ridicule of the older Dana, who suggested the Tribune's statement by speaking of its rival as "Founded by Horace Greeley; Founded by Whitelaw Reid."

Mr. Bryan declared he could not eat dinner with a Democrat who did not believe with him on the money question. The Boy Orator has no objection to dining with Democrats of the Henry George school, who by the way, did not believe in free silver, or Republicans like Henry Teller or Charles A. Tamm. The Nebraska Colonel strains at a gnat.

The Philadelphia Press is not adverse to the project of having the State Capitol moved to the Quaker City, and suggests that inasmuch as the insane asylums of the State are overcrowded the group of public buildings in Harrisburg could be used to house the demented. Evidently the Press believes that the legislative halls would not suffer by reason of the change of occupants.

E. A. Van Valkenburg was presented with an insistent diamond by the anti-Quay organization on Monday. He is Mr. Wanamaker's paid representative at Harrisburg.
Mr. Van Valkenburg has a nervous affection of the eyes which causes his continual blinking, and there is a little story told which runs that since he left the Quay forces and got into the Wanamaker camp the sight of so much money has such a dazzling effect upon his optics that it resulted in his nervous condition. It is to be sincerely hoped that the diamond presentation will not aggravate the trouble.

The trolley bill, with which Messrs. Sax-ton and Edwards labored to bring to life, went to its doom. It is a surprising fact that, notwithstanding the great demand by the people in behalf of legislation which will promote trolley building, the promoters of such enterprises were conspicuous by their absence at the Capital during the session of the Legislature. The steam railroads had lobbyists there to prevent trolley legislation, but the overhead wire system had no guardians to appear before committees. If the amendment of trolleyman is not interested, others cannot be expected to be.

So far Mayor Ashbridge has carried out the pledges made by him when he was nominated. He is the Mayor himself and this is evidenced in his appointments of Director of Public Safety and Director of Public Works.
There is but little doubt that Ashbridge intended appointing Collector of Port J. Wesley Thomas to the position of Director of Public Safety, but tiring of the bickerings and pleadings of political leaders, made the matter a personal one and gave the place to his most intimate friend, Abraham L. English. This appointment is considered as only a temporary one, but should any change be made it is safe to say it will not occur until after the Mayor has arranged the entire department to his own satisfaction.

One of the quaintest pieces of genuine unconscious humor that we have come across in a long time is Brother Harrison's editorial suggestion in the Advance that Bristol establish a farmers' market. Why, Brother, Bristol was a market town by royal grant, the franchise long, long ago. Capacious market sheds were maintained on Market street, one of our original streets that took its name from the market, until some thirty years ago when in the progress of civilization Bristol got through with its market.
Our housekeepers carry in home and the farmers bring the chickens and butter and eggs to the door at a convenient time, or the storekeeper sends to know what is wanted and then delivers it. How many of them would now drive to the town house in the early morning to select apples, scrapple, poultry and pot herbs? We have put the farmers out of the way in the garret along with the planning wheel, and the yellow dip, and the sacred Dog Day Proclamation and musling of the quinine, and the other old number of the past. We have moved on. Give us a new use, Brother, and we will be glad to

BRYAN AND REFRESHMENTS.

The great Bryan one dollar dinner was pulled off in New York on Saturday evening on schedule time. The cold victuals were in a stowed away beneath Democratic vests in a manner that does great credit to the appetites of the Impaired Order of Democracy.

The gathering was noted for the great display of relics. From Bryan, who was a sort of a piece de resistance, down to the lesser lights, the tickets represented a class of political outcasts. Of course all interest was centered upon the recent defeated presidential candidate, George Fred Williams, who has been repeatedly rejected by the voters of Massachusetts, told what few things he knew. Charles A. Towne, who was once a Republican Congressman from Minnesota, but was defeated for re-election, mingled harmlessly up in the great occasion. O.
H. P. Belmont, a millionaire, of no occupation, seeking notoriety, was one of the central figures at the cheap dinner.

Colonel Bryan's speech was the feature of the evening. Little attention was paid to the other talkers, but as soon as the familiar pose was exhibited the 2,500 others became frantic. Bryan adopted his usual tactics of condemning everything within range of speech. He renewed his attack upon the Supreme Court of the United States and expressed a desire to alter the Constitution of the United States in order to get his hands upon the wealth accumulated by others.

Government by injunction came in for its share of oratorical thumps. The right of trial by jury was one of the few things praised by the Western Demos. It is true he had not to be able to agree with Mr.
Bryan in some slight particulars, but although the Constitution of the United States is with him in this instance, it is doubtful if trial by jury is the proper method of reaching exact justice.

Mr. Bryan also found fault because President McKinley sought the only legitimate method of restoring honor to an executioner. He kicked against the army and poked at the banks, declaring that the bankers were seeking and obtaining great outrages from the government, the bankers were becoming the plutocratic rulers of the country. The Boy Talker does not seem to realize that the government is no respecter of persons and that it requires no "pull" to engage in the banking business. Mr. Bryan or any other man of more or less brains can become a banker and reap a portion of the alleged great harvest. It is a free field and no favor.

His whole line of talk seems to have been delivered for the purpose of making the unfortunate disatisfied with their condition, and having them realize that their state is the result of the machinations of the rich.
The poor fellows who hang on to his words and believe that he has wisdom go out swearing vengeance against the successful.
They interpret his utterances to mean that if he were the ruler they would get a living without working for it. Mr. Bryan is not honest. The history of the country and its people give him the lie. There are just the same opportunities presented to men to gain riches today as there ever were. The man who has the brains and the thrift will get to the top. There is no condition imposed by our form of government which will prevent the lowliest citizen from gaining a position of wealth and distinction. It is all in the man, and when Mr. Bryan endeavors to delude his hearers and say that the Republican government of the United States will not touch a rich man's dollar, but will take the poor man's blood he states that which he knows is false.

The Nebraska orator's arguments and doctrines are of the cheapest order.

THE QUAY TRIAL.

The Quay trial is now closing its second week. The first week concluded by Judge Middle deciding that the famous "red book" shall be part of the evidence. The prosecution, and those interested in running down Senator Quay, can cherish the thought that every transaction of the defendant in his relations with the jury's Bank will be presented to the jury. Every scrap of paper which has the slightest relevancy to the case, private telegrams, letters, memoranda, etc., has been read in open court.

The prosecution closed its case yesterday, and the defense opened its batteries this morning. The greatest surprise has been manifested at the weakness of the prosecution. The defense worked by the commonwealth's own witness that the sum of money Quay was accused of securing from the bank was in reality loans to Daniel Hastings and others. The plan (see telegram) was striped of its sensational taint. It was admitted that at the time when the famous message was sent Quay had $50,000 in the bank.

The existence of a political conspiracy is the extent that over. Even Quay's friends are surprised that the shrewdness which is behind the prosecution would attempt such a bold game with so little incriminating evidence.

Sensor Quay has been hunted into court by a set of arch conspirators, whose only interest in the conviction of the defendant is that the foremost Republican leader of the country may be removed from the head of the Pennsylvania organization, in order that they may have a free footing and have an opportunity to exercise political dictatorship.

That the treachery of the prime movers of the conspiracy will serve to place them in the position sought, is beyond consideration.
The voters of this State are not in sympathy with the tactics of David Martin, as is being demonstrated in county after county.

Sensor Chris Magee, the close friend of Martin, and business partner of Flinn, the insurgent leader, said in Harrisburg, in answer to an address by Attorney General Elkins:

I agree with the Attorney General and the chairman of the State Committee when he says that the prosecutions against Senator Quay are of a political character and were instigated for political purposes, and with such purpose I have no sympathy.

Magee acknowledges what every sensible voter in the State knows.

The cases have gone beyond newspaper trial and a complete and unprejudiced jury will decide the guilt or innocence of the defendant. If acquitted the prosecution can have no excuse to offer, as the Court has granted it the fullest latitude.

The verdict is awaited.

Senator Quay in his note addressed to the staunch Republicans at Harrisburg said:

To temper with those persons who for three months have prevented the election of a Senator from Pennsylvania would exorci-tate them from the abyss into which they have plunged. Instead of making their treason to the party odious, their treason would be made respectable. Treason made respectable will become fashionable.

NO SENATOR.

The last ballot for the election of a United States Senator to succeed M. S. Quay was taken yesterday. The result was no election.

As it is, unless Governor Stone calls an extra session, Pennsylvania will have but one Senator for the next two years. The fight will again go to the people, and two years hence the lines will be closely drawn and no man will receive a nomination and election where there is any mystery concerning his attitude.

Colonel Quay was deliberately robbed of an election by a pair of political tricksters.
It is a conceded fact that in November the voters of Pennsylvania elected a Legislature which was favorable to Senator Quay. Men who openly avowed that their vote would be cast for Colonel Quay received the honest support of the faithful Republicans. That the party was duped is plainly evident.

Every underhand method was used to elect a guerrilla chieftain. The betrayers even went so far as to force Colonel Quay to defend his honor in the courts. He was made the victim of the most heinous political conspiracy in the annals of the country.

Treachery and malice were spent in self without accomplishing anything further than holding Quay's election in abeyance.
Senator Magee, whose sympathies all along have been with the betrayers, made an eleventh hour ridiculous attempt at breaking the deadlock. His advertised sensational play was a grand fiasco. The attempt to make Quay the low man was a dismal failure.
Instead of carrying 20 to 25 men with him as promised, Magee took just an unalloyed 12.

The insurgents have shot their bolt. The fight is left open. Traitors and soldiers of fortune will be watched for next time.

TO CHANGE THE RULES.

The information is conveyed by our Harrisburg correspondent that the committee appointed by the last County Convention to draft a new nominating system for the Republicans of Bucks County will meet on May 8, when a report will be made up for submission to the County Committee, which will meet on May 13.

It is fully expected that the committee will make a report recommending that the present mass convention system be abolished and that a more up-to-date method of selecting candidates shall prevail in this county.

The resolutions adopted at the last convention demonstrated the fact that the time for a change is ripe and that the committee appointed for the purpose of drafting a new system is expected to act in accordance with the desire of the members of the party. To say that it will not do this would be an unjust statement.

There is no legitimate argument that can be used in favor of a retention of the present system. It has been an issue long enough to convince every one who believes in justice and Republican principles that it practically disqualifies a great portion of the Republican voters of the county. Under the provisions of the mass convention system each candidate's success is determined by the amount of cash he can command. Popularity and ability are of no account. The candidate who has the most money and the most influence will win. The system is not fair to the party and it is not fair to the voters. It is a system of bribery and corruption. It is a system of selling the party's interests for a few dollars. It is a

Sidney Smith's Prescription.
The late Henry Reeve, C. B., D. C. L., for many years leader and writer of the London Times and until his death editor of the Edinburgh Review, has narrated much amusing gossip of the celebrities of his acquaintance in his "Memoirs and Correspondence." The book contains one great rarity—a new story of Sidney Smith.

Mr. Reeve was dining one night at a house where the other distinguished guests included Macaulay and Sydney Smith. Macaulay was at that time laying society waste with his waterworks of talk. People in his company were always bursting for want of an opportunity of dropping a word, and this was not an exceptional occasion.

At length, dinner being over, Sydney Smith, Reeve and a few others went away by themselves and immediately fell on the overpowering subject of Macaulay.

"He confounds colloquy and colloquy," said Reeve.

"He is a book in breeches," Smith declared.

"The very worst feature in Macaulay's character is his appalling memory," said Reeve.

"Aye, aye," said Sydney Smith. "Why, he could repeat the whole 'History of the Virtuous Bluecoat Boy,' in three volumes, post 8vo, without a slip."

After a pause, as if of consideration, the witty divine added, "He should take two tablespoonfuls of the waters of Lette every morning to correct his inventive powers."

Cheap Living.
Government experts say that a man can be well fed for 85 cents a day. This, however, means feeding men in mass. There is a man in Philadelphia, however, who lives at the level of fare for the entire week only costs that amount. Twenty years ago he made up his mind that Americans ate too much. His staple meal is in the middle of the day, and it always consists of soup—good, rich soup—and a baked potato. Some days instead of the baked potato he has what southerners call corn pone, which are extremely cheap and whole some. They cost 5 cents a pound and swell very much in cooking. He cooks them with a bit of salt pork. Rice is also one of his staple foods and occasionally a little meat. He buys two loaves of stale bread a week, which cost 25 cents a loaf. These are always cooked.

Cabbage is another article of diet, cheap and of great value. He has an arrangement with his grocer by which he buys the scraps of cheese left over from the large cuttings at 2 cents for a day's scraps. He is in sound health and has not had indigestion for 20 years.—New York World.

Linked Eyebrows.
It is popularly believed that if one's eyebrows meet it indicates death. Charles Kingsley indorses this belief, but Tennyson has other ideas and poetical speaks of "married brows."

In Turkey most eyebrows are greatly admired, and the women use artificial means to bring the brows to this condition, and if art cannot induce thin eyebrows to grow they make up by drawing a black line with paste.

It would appear that the Greeks admired brows which almost met, and the fashionable inhabitants of Paris not only approved of them, but resorted to pigments to make up the lack which sometimes existed.

Some proverbists state that the person whose eyebrows meet will always have good luck, while others state exactly the reverse. The Chinese say that "people whose eyebrows meet can never hope to attain to the dignity of a minister of state," and in Greece of today the man whose brows meet is said to be a vampire, while in Denmark and Germany it is said he is a werewolf.

The English of 1452.
The English population consisted of clergy, nobles and craftsmen, as well as common people. It was a very and significant division. Traders and manufacturers took their place somewhat outside the other standing, filling the whole land till it seems for a moment as if nothing counted any more in English life save its middle class—a busy, hard, practical, energetic middle class, slowly emerging from its early obscurity. In this century it had arrived at power definitely, ostentatiously, carrying a proud look and a high stomach, intent on its own affairs, heedless of the court, regardless of ministers save when it had to bribe them. Irrelevant to the nobles, the proud pantries with his proud slaves, tolerant of ecclesiastical only so long as they could be kept rigidly within their allotted religious functions.—Denton's "England in the Fifteenth Century."

His Last Question.
The counsel for the opposition had been bullying the witness for an hour or more, when he finally asked: "Is it true that there are traces of insanity in your family?"

"It would be folly to deny it," replied the witness. "My great-grandfather, who was studying for the ministry, gave it up to become a lawyer."—Exchange.

A Remarkable Vase.
On the roof of a brewery at Maidenstone, Kent, is to be seen one of the most remarkable vases in England. It represents an old brown jug and glass. The jug, which is made of copper, stands 8 feet 6 inches in height and is 2 feet in diameter and capable of holding 108 gallons.

Overdid it.
"I understand she married him to reform him."

"That was it. And she did the job so thoroughly that now he doesn't like the kind of woman he liked when he married her and is trying to get a divorce."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Bridge of Lions.
The largest bridge in the world is not as one would imagine, the work of some famous English or French engineer. This bridge, comparatively little known, was constructed long ago, in China, in the reign of the Emperor Kien Loong. It is situated near to Sangang and the Yellow sea, and measures not less than eight miles and a half.

The bridge of lions, as it is called, is supported by 300 immense arches and its foundation is 31 meters under water. On each pile of this wonderful bridge is a marble statue of a lion, three times larger than life size. The comp d'ell of these 300 enormous lions, each one exporting an arch, is stupendous in its magnificence.

A New Commodity.
"John has 5 oranges, James gave him 11, and he gives Peter 7: how many has he left?"

Before this problem the class recoiled. "Please, sir," said a young lad, "we always do our sums in apples."—London Tit-Bite.

The Streets of New York.
It was lunchtime and the "frankfurter and roll" men of Frankfort street were doing their best to appease the appetites of the 300 or 350 newboys who thronged Park row. One of the dealers in giving change, to a boy who had just dropped a dime, and before he had time to pick it up his brother dealer quickly stooped down and grabbed it. Then came an argument in a way which only "frankfurter men" can argue, each claiming that he had dropped the dime. It was very likely they were arguing yet had not a young fellow of the Bowery type who had chanced to witness the trouble interfered. Walking up to the one who had really dropped the money he said:

"Dat's yer dime dat bloke has, ain't it?"

"Yes."

"Well, say, how much will yer gimme if I take it back for yer?"

"A nickel," was the answer.

Then, addressing the other contestant, the Bowery boy said:

"Say, yer got dat feller's dime, 'cause I saw yer take it. But, say, if I don't take it away from yer how much will yer gimme?"

"Six cents," was the quick reply.

"All right, hand over." The bargain was concluded, just as a policeman came rushing up and grabbed the one who had dropped the dime and took him to the station house for disorderly conduct.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A Punctual Man.
A certain Mr. Scott of Exeter whose business required him to travel constantly was one of the most famous characters for punctuality in the kingdom. By his methodical habits, combined with unwarlike industry, he accumulated a large fortune. For a great many years the landlord of every inn in Cornwall or Devon that he visited knew the exact day and hour he would arrive. A short time before he died, at the advanced age of 80, a gentleman who was making a journey through Cornwall put up at a small inn at Post Isaac for his dinner. He looked over the bill of fare and found nothing to his liking. He had, however, seen a fine duck roasting on the fire. "I'll have that," said he.

"You cannot, sir," replied the landlord. "It is for Mr. Scott of Exeter."

"I know Mr. Scott very well," replied the traveler. "He is not in your house."

"Very sorry," said the landlord, "but six months ago, when he was last here, he ordered the duck to be ready for him this day exactly at 3 o'clock. And to the amazement of the traveler, the old gentleman was at that moment entering the inn yard about five minutes before the appointed time.—Harper's Round Table.

An Acceptable Clock.
A well known professor sometimes became so much interested in his lecture that when the clock bell rang he kept the class for ten minutes after the hour. Certain restless spirits among the students thought they would give him a gentle hint, so they bought an alarm clock, set it to go off precisely at noon and placed it on the professor's desk when they came in to the next lecture. They knew that he was a little absent-minded and expected that he would not notice it.

At the noon hour struck the alarm went off with a crash, and those of the class not in the secret started and took in the joke at once. There was a round of applause. The professor waited until the alarm and the applause were over and then said, "Young gentlemen, I thank you for this little gift. I had forgotten it was my birthday. An alarm clock is something my wife has needed for our servant for some time. It is a very kind remembrance on your part." The professor then went on to finish a demonstration interrupted by the alarm.—London Tit-Bite.

A Bad Dream.
It is not likely that any English speaking people understand so keen and punctilious a devotion to the niceties of language as that which characterizes the French grammarians. We may help ourselves to understand it perhaps by reading a story told of M. Lamany.

One night lately he awoke and sprang out of bed with a wild cry. His wife, who was running, he was in alarm and despair.

"Why, what is the matter?" she gasped.

"I dreamed," said the professor.

"Oh, I had a horrible, a heart-rending dream."

"What was it?"

"What I was talking, and I distinctly heard myself utter a sentence which had a grammatical error in it."—Youth's Companion.

Smart Little Girl.
A little girl who has just entered school jubilantly announced to her father that she had beaten all the girls above her in the arithmetic class and gone to the top.

"That was clever of you," said he encouragingly. "How was it?"

"Well, you see, the teacher asked the girl at the head how much was 8 and 5, and she didn't know and said 13, and the next girl said 9, and the next one said 11, and the next one said 14. Such silly answers! Then the teacher asked me, and said 13, and she told me to go up. Come it was 13."

"That was nice," said the father. "I didn't think you could add so well. How did you know it was 13?"

"Why, I guessed it. Nobody said 13."—Pearson's Weeklies.
